

FOCUS RESET TOOLS

15 Minute Start

1. Write down the task.
2. Set a 15–20 minute timer.
3. Start working.

If your mind wanders:

- Write the thought down.
- Don't analyze it.
- Return to the task.

Goal: Start and return – not perfect focus.

Catch the Thought

When a distracting thought shows up:

1. Notice the thought.
2. Write it down (or add a tick mark if it's already written).
3. Tell yourself: "Not now. I'll think about this later."
4. Return to the task.

If the thought comes back, repeat the process. Each return trains your attention.

3 Minute Work Reset

Use this between teaching and work tasks:

1. Move your body (walk, stretch, light movement).
2. Do a quick brain dump (1–2 minutes).
3. Choose ONE task and set the timer.

Progress beats waiting for perfect clarity.

2 Minute End of Day Reflection

Ask yourself three quick questions:

- What did I start today?
- What helped me start?
- What is the first step tomorrow?

This helps build internal accountability without pressure.
